Miss Mildred Voris .....	1239
Miss Norma Dixon .....	1110
Miss Tulita Kellner .....	1081

Casting nearly 1000 votes yesterday, Miss Millie Williams is again in the lead this morning. Miss Williams put in another active day and is not only working to hold the lead, but to secure the premium of 2000 votes offered by the Silver Belt to the candidate showing the greatest gain of votes in the Sunday morning issue.

This liberal offer has added speed to the movements of all the candidates, especially Miss Dollie Armstrong, who made a net gain yesterday of 1564 and marched proudly into second position. Miss Dollie took an afternoon off yesterday and in four or five hours made this monstrous gain. She also received many pledges of support.

Miss Lillie Kinsman, who is in fourth position this morning, made a gain of 453 votes over the score of the previous day. Miss Lillie is working hard and will be with the leaders at the close. Miss Tulita Kellner and Miss Mildred Voris are the new faces in the four-figure column this morning, coming through with handsome gains. Miss Chapman has also advanced her figures materially.

The gains of the first day are as follows:

Miss Armstrong .....	1564
Miss Williams .....	905
Miss Kellner .....	473
Miss Voris .....	473
Miss Kinsman .....	453
Miss Chapman .....	221
Miss Kelsey .....	14

Ball game at South Side park today. Don't miss it.

Order Belleflower apples from your grocer.

A pleasing, good, high grade, truly flavored, amber colored cup of coffee can be had—and without the real coffee danger, or damage to health, by simply using Dr. Shoop's new substitute, called Health Coffee. Pure, wholesome, toasted cereals, malt, nuts, etc., make Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee both healthful and satisfying. No 20 to 30 minutes tedious boiling. "Made in a minute," says Dr. Shoop. If served as coffee, its taste will even trick an expert. Test it and see. Morehead & Lunn.

Clearing It Up.
"To which is a man more closely related," said the genealogist, "his first divorced wife's second husband or his present wife's first divorced husband?"
"So far as I can see, one tie is about as close as the other," said a thoughtful friend.
"So I should say," said the genealogist, "but Billy Bowen must have figured out a difference. Anyhow, when his first wife's second husband died Billy went to a ball game, but when his present wife's first husband died he went into mourning. I can't understand that."
"I can," said the thoughtful friend. "Billy's present wife was on the point of divorcing him so she could remarry her first husband. Now that he is dead she has decided to stick to Billy."
"Ah!" said the genealogist.—New York Press.

Always Waning.
A Frenchman who apparently has a good deal of time on his hands has been amusing himself by reckoning up the number of kisses he has given his wife during the first twenty years of his married life.

He finds that in the first year he dispensed about 100 kisses a day, or, say, allowing for birthdays and legal and church holidays, about 35,700 in the year.

In the second year this number was reduced by half and in the third year to ten a day, while in the fifth year his better half had to be content with two a day, one in the morning and one in the evening.

What happened in the fifth year is "wrapped in mystery," but at the same rate of "progression" he probably arrived eventually at one kiss on the first of January every leap year.

Freedom of the Press.

The battle for a free press in the full modern sense was fought out between 1764 and 1771, beginning with the prosecution of Wilkes for attacking Bute in the North Briton and ending with the successful resistance to the proclamation by which the commons had forbidden the publication of their debates. Six printers who had infringed the proclamation were summoned to the bar of the house. Five obeyed, and the messenger of the house was sent to arrest the sixth. The lord mayor sent the messenger to prison. The house of commons sent the lord mayor to the Tower, but he was released at the next prorogation, and the day on which he left the Tower marked the end of the last attempt to silence the press.—New York American.

Queer Virginia Oysters.
But, sure enough, did you know there were some oysters, and Virginia oysters at that, which cannot live always under sheets of water? The seaside oyster does not grow in deep water, say over ten feet, and the most and best of them grow in water so shoal that it is dry ebb half the time. These latter are the most prolific seed bearers we have, but they will die if planted in deep water or in the Chesapeake bay. The inside or bay oyster should never ebb bare to thrive best. Singular, isn't it, that the Virginia oysters, one and the same bivalves, can lead a double life, but only one phase of it at a time! The seaside fellow must be out of water a good portion of his time to thrive, while the bay and river fellow will die in summer and freeze in winter if exposed to the air.—Virginia Citizen.

The Roast.
"To judge woman by her looks is to court error," said a well known woman. "I know a man who while carving at a dinner wished to say something that would please the pale, deep eyed, spirituelle girl at his side."
"How do you like Macerlinck?" he at last inquired.

"Well done," she answered, not once lifting her eyes from the great roast he was working on.—Washington Post.

A Difficult Case.

A physician received late one evening a note from three of his fellow practitioners:

"Please step over to the club and join us at a rubber of whist."
"Emille, dear," he said to his wife, "here I am called away again. It appears to be a difficult case—there are three other doctors on the spot already."

New.

"I want you," said the stage manager, "to play the part of a banker and I want you to try to play it with a touch of originality."
"All right," responded Yorick Hamm, "I'll leave off the mutton chop whiskers."—Kansas City Journal.

The Difficulty.

"Could you bring yourself to live in a flat on 14 a week?"
"I could, Harold," answered the pampere yet unspoiled darling. "But I do not know just how it would suit my French maid."—London Tatler.

The Real Question.

"Where does he get his money?"
"I don't know where he gets his, and I don't care. What I am interested in is knowing just how he gets mine."—Nashville American.
